Integrated planning means impeccable implementation

The total project was put out for tender in a two-stage process which amongst other things required the provision of structural and operational plans. After being commissioned in 2012, PORR worked with the architect and professional planners to set up an integrated planning process incorporating the preliminary design, design and submission schedule stages. This allowed any proposals for improvements to be rapidly assimilated into the planning process and promoted a cost-effective approach to the whole construction process. The main aim was to apply a life cycle approach to managing the project.
